

COLUMBIA ASTRONOMY OUTREACH PRESENTS:

STARGAZING & LECTURE SERIES

How to Build a Galaxy

Munier Salem

Friday, March 27th, 8:00PM

Pupin Hall, Columbia University

Galaxies like our Milky Way are fascinating creatures, home to billions of stars and planets. Come discover how these elegant systems form over billions of years and what gives them their shape and shine.

These are free lectures at a public level followed by guided stargazing with telescopes (weather permitting). All events are held at Pupin Hall at Columbia University. No reservations are needed. Lectures are 30 minutes, stargazing lasts 90 minutes. Stay only as long as you want. For directions, weather updates and more information, please visit:
