

COLUMBIA ASTRONOMY OUTREACH PRESENTS:

STARGAZING & LECTURE SERIES

Vacation Guide to the Solar System

Jana Grcevich & Olivia Koski
Friday, October 19th, 7:00PM
Pupin Hall, Columbia University

Have you ever considered taking a leisure trip to the edge of space, the Moon, or perhaps even Mars? A holiday in the great void isn't as out-of-this-world a possibility as you might think. We are at the dawn of a space tourism revolution and you need to be prepared. Explore the infinite possibilities of your ultimate extraterrestrial getaway with the help of New York's own intergalactic travel agents, Olivia and Jana!

These are free lectures at a public level followed by guided stargazing with telescopes (weather permitting). All events are held at Pupin Hall at Columbia University. No reservations are needed. Lectures are 30 minutes, stargazing lasts 90 minutes. Stay only as long as you want. For directions, weather updates and more information, please visit:
